

Redrock Micro Wins Coveted Mario Award at NAB 2006

Award honors technology innovation and advancement

Dallas, TX – Redrock Microsystems, LLC has announced the Redrock Suite of Cinema Accessories (including the M2 cinema lens adapter and the microFollowFocus) the winner for the coveted Mario Award.

Organized in 1993, the Mario Awards were established to recognize manufacturers whose products represent significant technical breakthroughs -- many of these products have gone on to significantly impact the future of video technology.

The awards are named after Mario Orazio, a pseudonym for a nameless engineer and a renowned technology columnist for TV Technology who pens the industry's most widely read column "The Masked Engineer." The awards are given out annually at the NAB convention to companies that demonstrate forward thinking and technical excellence in their products.
